AN IMPORTANT SIGN OF THE TIMES.

A short time ago the Gazette made mention of the fact that John Burns, a total abstainer in regard to drink, was a powerful leader of the strikers in London. He is not a man who would probably have much influence in America but in London, with all his singular traits of character, he wielded a wonderful influence over the 150,000 striking men. And what is fully as singular as the great power of that strange man, is that John Burns and John Burns walk side by side. Only a few days ago there appeared in a New York paper a letter from London, written to show the great leadership of the aged Cardinal, part of which is as follows:—

I think him in many respects the most important personality, the most impressive and powerful. I ever met. His presence is striking. His tall, attenuated form, telling of midnight vigils, of severe thought, of complete self-control, of the victory of mind over the flesh, impress me strongly. Great numbers of men have a vast respect for him, sincere as such as Manning is. False, somewhat exaggerated, of his spare diet are told on all hands, and people gaze with some wonder on a man who, at splendid public banquets or at stately dinners, contents himself with a biscuit and water. The cardinal's voice is weak and thin, but singularly clear, so that the largest audiences can usually hear every word he says. Every eye listens eagerly for every syllable and every syllable tells. No lawyer at the courts of justice is more severely argumentative; yet the argument is couched in such very lucid language that even the most ignorant can scarcely fail to comprehend. Many of his platform speeches have been made at great temperance meetings. He is a strong advocate of prohibitory legislation.

There is no man in all England that has a greater influence over the workingmen than Cardinal Manning, and this illustrates an important point. In the United States the leaders of great masses of workingmen have been leaders of a different class of men from John Burns and Cardinal Manning. The experience of this country shows that with the exception of Mr. Powderly, the men who control the great body of working people have been men of a much lower order than John Burns. They have been somewhat akin to Martin Irons, and that class of men who are of the walking delegate order, and who care not a farthing for the personal welfare of the masses. There is certainly something to call on general congratulations when temperance men, men of deep religious convictions, can wield a saving influence over 150,000 strikers. When this shall be the rule, the days of the leadership of the walking delegate and such men as John L. Sullivan are numbered.

THE SOUTH IS RIGHT.

The other day when the democrats of Massachusetts were in convention they resolved that there should be free coal and iron ore, and a lower duty upon pig-iron, to save the waning iron and steel industries of New England.

Upon the publication of the democratic platform, the Augusta Chronicle, of Georgia, made a response in these words: "The south is blessed with inexhaustible supplies of coal and iron. We feel for New England, but she is rich and powerful in manufactures and commerce. The south can furnish her with all the coal and iron ore and pig-iron that she will need for a thousand years. New England ought to be too patriotic to send out of this country for raw materials. She should be made to understand that the tariff was made for the south as well as New England. It has been the boast of New England that she has built up her manufactures and become rich under a protective tariff which her statesmen adopted in congress for the benefit of the whole country.

"That is the claim of New England, and the south should now insist upon the application of the theory and practice of that section as to the tariff in the development of the mining interests and manufactures of the south."

It was a rather foolish resolve on the part of the Massachusetts democrats, for there is no need of free soft coal or free iron ore. There are enough coal and iron ranges in this country to last a thousand years. They can be had by the millions of tons in other states than in Pennsylvania. Taking the duty off bituminous coal and iron ore, would only save the iron or the steel industry of any section of the country.

Our democratic friends, who do not want to be known as absolute free traders, are to be pitied. President Eliot, of Harvard college, has at last joined the democratic party. He became sick of being a mugwump, and declared that any citizen in order to do any effective work must belong to one of the two great parties. This is true, every word of it, and is a slap at the mugwumps. In taking himself over to the democratic camp he tells "the democratic party as the exponent of free trade." This declaration will give the democrats some trouble because they do not want to acknowledge the fact, neither do they want it preached from the house tops, that there is a free trade party. President Eliot "believes the principle of protection is false and opposed to the possible industrial development of the country," and wants free trade to succeed, and that the only way to foster the principles of Cobden, is to put democrats in power. President Eliot can have the fun of voting with the democrats, but he will likewise have the fun of seeing his party face both ways on the tariff question. The president's potatoes have been taken to a poor market.

ONE OF THOSE SCHENCKS.
A Mischievous Soldier who Upset a General's Dignity.
When the War of the Rebellion broke out, General Robert C. Schenck had been so long in public life and away from Ohio that he didn't know, even by sight, half of the numerous nephews who were sons of his half-dozen brothers. He was appointed Brigadier-General, and as it so happened that one of the regiments assigned to his brigade over in Virginia was the 24th Ohio, commanded by Colonel Alexander McDowell McKook.

Several of the companies of this regiment were raised in and around Dayton, where the Schencks lived in swarms, and as the family was loyal all through, there was a goodly number of Schencks in Company B and Company F of that regiment. It so happened that the Schenck contingent in the regiment was thoroughly imbued with a love of fun, and when any mischief was about the Schencks were sure to have a hand in it. If a party was being up for discipline, one or more Schencks were sure to be of the number. This fact was very annoying to the General, as might have been expected, and he did not try to conceal his annoyance. While the brigade lay near Fairfax Court House select orders against foraging were issued. The Schencks, even threatened to have foragers shot. One morning a party of five foragers, captured the night before, was brought before Gen. Schenck for examination. The General looked at the faces closely, but recognized none, and then asked the first man:

"What is your name and regiment?"

"Peter Brown, 24th Ohio, sir."

"Oh!" (in a relieved tone of voice) "I was afraid you might be one of those blank Schencks."

"What's your name?" he inquired of the next.

The youth looked the General straight in the eye, and answered cheerily, "Why, General, I'm one of those blank Schencks."

The officers standing by did not try to restrain their boisterous mirth, while General Schenck glared furiously at the unabashed Buckeye youngster. In a moment he shouted to the officer of the guard:

"Take these scoundrels away; I will attend to them another time." The culprits were marched off and the General had time to just get into his tent before he broke out in a prolonged fit of laughter.

TOUCHING DISCOVERY.

What Workmen Excavating in the Eternal City Found.

In May last the workmen who were digging the foundations for the new law courts in Rome discovered a sarcophagus buried thirty feet below the surface. Immediately the telephone called to the spot the members of the Archeological Commission, scientific and literary men, who watch with jealous care all the excavations made in the Eternal City. Under their direction it was carefully raised and opened.

Within lay the skeleton of a young girl, with the remains of the linen in which she had been wrapped, some brown leaves from the myrtle wreath with which, emblematic of her youth, she had been crowned in death.

On her hands were four rings, of which one was the double betrothal ring of plain gold, and another with Filletus, the name of her betrothed, engraved upon it. A large and most exquisite amethyst brooch, in Etruscan setting of the finest work, carved amber pins, and a gold necklace with small pendants were lying about.

But what is most strange, as being almost unique, was a doll of oak wood, beautifully carved, the joints articulated so that legs and arms and hands move on sockets, the hands and feet delicately cut with small and delicate nails. The features and the hair were carved out in the most minute and careful way, the hair waving low on the forehead, and being bound with a fillet.

On the outside of the sarcophagus was sculptured her name, Tryphana Creporia, and a touching scene, doubtless faithfully representing her parting with her parents. She is lying on a low bed, and striving to raise herself on her left arm to speak to her heart-broken father, who stands leaning on the bedstead, his head bowed with grief, while her mother sits on the bed, her head covered, weeping.

It seems but yesterday, so natural is the scene, and yet it is nearly eighteen centuries ago that these stricken parents laid so tenderly away their dearly loved daughter, with her ornaments and her doll.

IMPAIRED SIGHT.

Some of the Common Causes of Defective Vision.

Causes of impaired sight: 1. Sudden changes from very light rooms to dark ones, or the reverse, causing more or less pain, which is always an indication that something is wrong. 2. The flickering of gas-lights and the instability of all lights, since the sight is more or less laborious. 3. Reading in the cars, or when the body is not at rest, as well as in a recumbent posture. 4. The use of tobacco, especially chewing, except so far as the smoke particles of tobacco get to the eyes; tobacco poisoning the whole system, seriously affecting the optic nerve. 5. The intense light of the kerosene lamp, the same being true, in some degree, of all artificial lights. 6. The use of the eyes at twilight hour, in moonlight, or any imperfect light, when an effort is made to see. 7. The exposure of the eye to the bright light of a fire, etc., with the added heat. 8. Reflected light, as from the snow, in a very bright day. 9. Long-continued darkness, the result of which is the same, to the sight, as fasting till one becomes very weak. 10. The exposure of the body. 11. Gluttony, debauchery, intemperance in any respect, especially the use of ardent spirits, gross living and venery, the latter especially. 11. All undue effort, all use that produces fatigue or harm, it being always safe to stop at this alarm.

DOWN TO THEIR DEATH.

HORROR ON THE INCLINED PLANE AT CINCINNATI.

A Car Loaded With Passengers Dashed to Pieces—Four Killed and Five Badly Injured—Casualties.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 16.—A car on the Mount Auburn inclined plane at the head of Main street, which rises between 250 and 300 feet in a space of perhaps 2,000 feet, became unmanageable about noon Tuesday, rushed down the plane, and was dashed to pieces. Eight persons were killed and all of the others badly hurt. The dead are:

Judge WILLIAM M. DICKSON, aged 65, MICHAEL KNEBS.

Mrs. CALIE IYVES.

Mrs. MARY G. ERRETT.

JOSEPH McFADDEN, Sr.

The wounded are:

Mrs. ANNE ROBERTSON.

Miss LILLIAN OSEAMP, fatally.

JOSEPH McFADDEN, Jr., seriously.

GEORGE MILLER, fatally.

JOSEPH HIRSH, aged 14, badly cut.

Several other persons who were near the scene of the disaster were hurt by flying fragments. Miller was standing on the floor of the car, and was struck by the roof of the car. He is still unconscious. Huette was badly cut about the legs by flying fragments of the car.

How the Accident Happened.

There are two tracks upon the inclined plane, one ascending and the other descending, by two steel-wire cables wound around a drum by an engine at the top of the hill. The ascending car having reached the top of the incline, Charles Goebel attempted to force down the lever which shuts off the steam and stops the engine. For some reason the apparatus refused to work, and the car, rushing on upon the iron railing, Goebel bent all his strength upon the lever, but it failed to bulge. On the car rushed madly with the tremendous power that drove it on. The iron work placed deep into the wood above, and the cable tugged. Finally, with a grating noise, the cable slipped from the brass cables that held them, the bolts that secured them opened, and the car was free. The passengers were conscious of the doom impending, were about to step from the vehicle as it shot downward on its mission of death. The heavy iron railing, which fell together on the flooring of the car. Down the plane of several hundred feet it shot, and, plunging fiercely upon the railing at the bottom, dashed to pieces. The car struck, shot far out upon Main street, and was shivered into a thousand fragments.

The iron gate that formed the lower end of the track on which the car rested was thrown sixty feet down the street. The top of the car was lying almost as far away in the gutter. The truck itself and the seats of the car crumpled into a shapeless wreck, mingled with the blood and mangled bodies of the passengers.

Mrs. Ives was dead when taken from the wreck. The others named in the list of killed died of their injuries soon after. The intense excitement prevailed and numerous inquiries were made by friends who feared members of their families might be the fastest.

The horror of the passengers looked in the other car and compelled to await the coming of the doomed car and its inevitable crash beside them at the foot of the track may be imagined.

Who the Victims Were.

Judge Dickson, who is among the dead, was one of the first of the wounded to die. He was a retired lawyer, and had been a warm personal friend of Abraham Lincoln. He was crushed, and his head and face were cut. He was conscious when taken from the wreck, but unable to talk. Mr. Knebs was a teacher in the third intermediate school, and lived at 14 Euclid avenue, Mount Auburn, with his family. He was on his way home to dinner. His body was badly disfigured and was removed to the morgue. Mrs. Ives was the wife of Caleb Ives, treasurer of the Globe soap works at 35 Water street, and lived at Riverdale. She was on her way to visit her son, Franklin Ives, and his bride. Her neck was broken. Joseph McFadden, Sr., was a stone cutter of 110 Sanders street, Mount Auburn. Miss Oseamp is the daughter of Henry Oseamp.

Charles Goebel, who was at the lever and had the unspeakable horror to find himself unable to stop the engine, says that he complained that the "cut off" was not working properly. "I told the engineer about it this morning," he said, "and the engineer told me he had repaired it. But it was evidently still out of order, and he must have been what was the cause of the accident." Engineer Howard Worden could not be found, although this is not to be considered as evidence that he is hiding.

The inclined plane on which the disaster happened is the oldest in the city. It was built twenty-one years ago, and this is the first accident attended with the loss of life at any of the four inclined planes that are in almost constant use. It is too early for an examination into the trouble with the engine, but there have been only two similar cases in the history of inclined planes here. In both the others the engine was got under control before the cables were broken.

THREE FRIGHTFUL FALLS.

A Boy and a Woman and Her Babe Dashed to Death.

New York, Oct. 16.—Almost at the same moment, and within a short radius, three persons were killed by falling from roofs last evening. Just before 6 o'clock Luigi Landolina, a 40-year-old Italian boy, fell from the roof of the five-story tenement 5 Roosevelt street, where he was playing, and his brains were dashed out upon the flagging of the yard below. Surrounded the fall of Mrs. Lizzie O'Brien, who with her babe fell or was thrown from the roof of 42 Oliver street, is a mystery which the police are trying to solve. Three persons, one the woman's husband, are locked up to await investigation.

Loss of a River Steamer.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 16.—The steamer Minnie Bay, bound from Manchester to Cincinnati, with 125 passengers aboard, struck a snag yesterday at Kramer's landing, opposite Moscow, Ohio, and sunk. The passengers became panic-stricken, but the officers and crews lowered boats and yaws and safely transferred everybody to the shore. The freight was removed by the steamer St. Lawrence. The Minnie Bay cost $35,000, and was insured for $12,000.

Three Men Buried in a Well.

TRINIDAD, Col., Oct. 16.—While five men were digging a large well at the Victor coal mines the walls caved in, killing two white men and one negro. Workmen are trying to recover the bodies, but it will be impossible to reach them for several hours.

A Street Car Magnate Injured.

New York, Oct. 16.—It is reported that "Deacon" Richardson, the Brooklyn street car magnate, has been run over by a Broadway street car in lower Broadway and seriously injured.

MINNESOTA FIRES.

Prairies, Marshes and Woods Burned; Fire, Causing Great Loss.

FARIBAULT, Minn., Oct. 16.—There are great many fires in the marshes and prairies in this vicinity. Fox lake, which is now a grass-grown marsh, is on fire and the peaty bottom is burning down. The burning tract comprises about 100 acres. Fires have also been burning near Mud lake, which have burned holes in the peat 20 feet deep. Other fires are also burning near here in the marshes, woods, etc., causing great loss.

REPORTS OF A TERRIBLE WRECK.

Thirty People Said to Have Been Killed in a Colorado Collision.

HASTINGS, Neb., Oct. 16.—Reports reach this city of a collision last night at Sterling, Colo., between a Burlington and Union Pacific passenger train, in which about thirty persons were killed and many injured. Particulars cannot be ascertained.

It Met an Agonizing Fate.

WINDOM, Minn., Oct. 16.—At Mountain Lake, this county, a child only a few months old named Roup fell into a pot of slacking lime and was burned to death. Its flesh on all parts not covered by clothing was eaten away by the lime.

MATTERS POLITICAL.

Democratic Societies of Pennsylvania in Session at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 16.—The first general assembly of the Democratic societies of Pennsylvania began here Tuesday. Over eight hundred delegates, representing Democratic clubs in all parts of the State, were in attendance. President Chauncey F. Black called the convention to order in a short speech, which was received with great enthusiasm. His reference to ex-President Cleveland evoked the loudest round of cheers, while his reference to tariff tax, as he termed it, "pillaging the mass to enrich the class," evoked expressions of approval.

A temporary organization was effected by the unanimous election of W. U. Hensel of Lancaster, president, and Major John D. Worman of Philadelphia, secretary.

The chair announced that he had two letters to read and then proceeded to read one from ex-Speaker Randall, who said that he should go to Washington before the assembly took place and therefore could not be present. When the letter of ex-President Cleveland was read the delegates cheered until they could cheer no more by reason of exhaustion. The letter was as follows:

"My estimate of the value of these Democratic societies as agents for the instruction of the people upon political topics and for the securing of a more efficient political work is well known, and there was a time in the interest of good government and national prosperity they were more needed. The condition of political affairs is such that the Democratic party should be directed to the enforcement of the distinctive principles of the party, and in my opinion this is no time for a search after makeshifts and temporary expedients. We, as a party, are fairly enlisted in the cause of the people and patriotism; duty and party success require that we should be consistent and steadfast. All personal and selfish aims should be subordinated. I confidently expect that in the work we have in hand our Democratic societies will exhibit an efficiency which will be gratefully acknowledged by all who have at heart the welfare and prosperity of the American people."

A recess was then taken to await the reports of committees. Upon reassembling President Chauncey F. Black, of New York, Secretary John D. Worman of Philadelphia, Treasurer J. Irwin Steel of Ashland were re-elected and the following vice-presidents chosen: William J. Hauch of Reading, J. H. W. Howard (colored) of Harrisburg, and Joseph P. Murphy and John A. Fow of Philadelphia. The report of the committee on resolutions was received and unanimously adopted, and this ended the business of the convention.

SOUTH DAKOTA LEGISLATURE.

Gov. Mellette Delivers His Inaugural—Senatorial Caucus.

PIERRE, S. D., Oct. 16.—The members of the first Legislature in South Dakota, convened in caucus at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. Lieut. Gov. Fletcher presided over the Senate and the following ticket was chosen: Chief clerk, Burdick of Yankton; chaplain, Edward Brown of Kingsbury; sergeant-at-arms, J. C. Cummings of Brookings. In the House the following nominations were made: Speaker, Young of Minnehaha; chief clerk, R. E. Cone of Brule; sergeant-at-arms, Frank Hotelling of Basile. The Legislature convened at 3 o'clock and the members were sworn in. Gov. Mellette then delivered his inaugural. The Legislature adjourned to meet Wednesday for the purpose of balloting for United States Senators.

At the Republican legislative caucus in the evening Judge Moody of Deadwood and Mr. Pettigrew of Sioux Falls were decided on for United States Senators.

Montana Election Returns.

HELENA, Mont., Oct. 16.—Official returns from every county in Montana, but one show that the Republicans have thirty-eight members of the Legislature and the Democrats thirty-two, with one doubtful in Madison county. Without Silver Bow county, where the contest is likely to delay the delivery of certificates to members, the Republicans have a majority of seven and seven Democrats, and the House twenty-five Republicans and twenty Democrats. T. C. Power, Republican candidate for Governor, is likely to institute a contest before the Territorial canvassing board on the vote in Deer Lodge county. If it should succeed, Power would be Governor.

Tammany's Candidates.

New York, Oct. 16.—The Tammany hall county convention has nominated the following candidates: For Register, Frank T. Fitzgerald; Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, David Learentritt; Judges of the City court, Charles J. Nehrbas and Robert A. Van Winkle; Judge of the Court of General Sessions, Henry A. Gildersleeve; president of the board of aldermen, John H. V. Arnold.

Nebraska Democratic Convention.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 16.—The Democratic State convention nominated the following ticket: For judge of the Supreme court, John H. Ames of Lincoln; for Regents of the State University, W. J. McKenna of Adams county and P. W. Hess of Platte county.

AN INFERNAL MACHINE.

SENT TO A MILWAUKEE MAN IN THE MAILS.

Filled With Lead and Pistol, Dynamite Cartridges and Gunpowder—The Cronin Jury Brings Case.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 16.—A wonderfully fully constructed and tremendously charged infernal machine was received at the postoffice Tuesday by W. B. Neaves, a real estate dealer. The box contained a real pistol cocked and loaded, two dynamite cartridges, and two quarts of fine gunpowder. The pistol was so connected with a wire that the raising of the lid of the box would discharge it and ignite the contents. Had the machine gone off the explosion would have been of sufficient force to have killed a dozen men and wrecked everything in any room it might have been at the time.

The machine was originally sent addressed to "W. B. Neaves, Grand Rapids, Wis." Mr. Neaves had lately moved to Milwaukee, and the postmaster at Grand Rapids forwarded it to him here. It was so heavy that the postal authorities did not attempt to deliver it, but notified Mr. Neaves to call. He did so and when he received it he was greatly surprised. "I wonder who could have sent me such a package as this," he remarked. "Perhaps it's an infernal machine," he added, laughing. After removing the outer wrapping he found a large plush-covered box. The lid was secured by a fastened down and in jostling it about some particles of gunpowder were sifted out. Thoroughly startled, Mr. Neaves called a mysterious box to his mother's office on Grand Avenue. Word was sent to the central station, and Detectives Spengler and Sullivan responded. They held a consultation and decided to open the box by removing the bottom instead of the top, first soaking the box in water. They accomplished the feat successfully and found it to contain the explosives above mentioned. It is now at the central station.

Mr. Neaves says he has no enemies that he knows of, and he is prostrated by thinking over his narrow escape. It is a wonder that the deadly machine did not explode while being tossed about by the mails. There is no clue to the sender and the place where it was mailed is withheld by the authorities.

THE JURY DRIBBLES.

Thomas Kavanaugh Not one of the Cronin Murderers.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—Thomas Kavanaugh, arrested for jury bribing in the Cronin case, is not J. B. Simons. Mr. Hatfield of Leland & Co., and Mr. Tardenton, the gentleman who rented the flat at 117 Clark street, went to the jail to see Kavanaugh yesterday morning and failed to identify him as Simons. The resemblance was close, that a second look had to be taken to decide the question. Kavanaugh's features and complexion were good counterparts of Simons', and both dressed in the first thing that came to hand. When Kavanaugh came out of his cell Mr. Hatfield declared that the bearing of the two men was entirely different, and Mr. Throckmorton agreed with that their first impression was erroneous.

Thomas Kavanaugh, one of the indicted men in the jury-bribing case, was released on bail by Judge Baker this morning. The bail was $5,000. James Collins and John McGovern are responsible for Mr. Kavanaugh's appearance in court when the State wants him.

REVEALED AFTER MANY YEARS.

A Man Now Inmate Said to Have Confessed to a Double Murder in 1883.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 16.—May 9, 1883, a widow named Foreman, aged 75, and her daughter, aged 55, were found murdered near Trades' Park, ten miles from the city. They were known to be very wealthy, and as no money was found upon the premises it was supposed the crime was for the purpose of robbery. Suspicion pointed to relatives of the murdered women as the perpetrators of the crime, but on trial there was no evidence against them.

Today Mrs. W. H. Maubum, whose husband has been since July an inmate of the insane asylum, says he told her that he and two companions whose names he would not give committed the murder, and that he got $450 for his share of the crime. Maubum was seen at the asylum, where he spoke in terms of the greatest familiarity of Jimmy Hope, led last year, and other noted lake robbers. He professed to have participated in the Manhattan bank robbery but would not discuss the Foreman murder.

STOOD BY TO WATCH THEM DIE.

Sentence of Horace Sebring, Who Tried to Poison His Family.

BERRIEN SPRINGS, Mich., Oct. 16.—Horace Sebring, the youth who tried to poison all the members of his family, including his mother and father, and thus came into possession of a paltry estate, which would have enabled him to get married, has been sentenced to twenty-five years in the State prison. He confessed the horrible details of his crime. He purchased the poison and hid it until a suitable opportunity was given him to place it in the tea-kettle. All the family partook of the tea, and when they discovered that they were poisoned and implored him to go for aid he stolidly refused and waited for the drug to do its deadly work. His purpose was frustrated, however, by the timely appearance of the adjutant, who secured the victims of his inhuman plot.

A constable and posse, provided with a rope, gave chase and are determined to hang the assailant on sight. The assaults were committed at brief intervals and in the same neighborhood.

Threw His Son Over the Bridge.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 16.—While intoxicated last evening, J. M. Deoley, an iron worker, threw his 5-year old son over the thirty-third street bridge into the river, a distance of forty feet. The boy was rescued before drowning, but will probably die. Deoley said he had ordered his children not to play on the bridge and only intended to frighten the boy, but slipped from his grasp.

SHOT DOWN IN A RIOT.

Four Men Killed and Many Wounded in a Southern Feud.

DOOTHEN, Ala., Oct. 16.—One of the bloodiest riots in the history of the State occurred here yesterday. It was the culmination of a feud between the town people and the Farmers' alliance, and caused the violent death of four men. The alliance was very strong in this county, and not long ago it established here a warehouse which made great inroads into the profits of the townpeople.

The town folks insisted that if the alliance warehouse did business it should be subjected to license taxes. This the alliance men resisted, and an effort to collect dry license brought on the fight.

George M. Stringer, the manager of the Farmers' warehouse, was the first to be shot, and he was killed. The alliance men, under the leadership of one of the drays men, when he was arrested, and his trial set for yesterday. The alliance men attacked the trial in force and B. Stringer.

EDMUND YATES' BUDGET OF FOREIGN GOSSIP.

The Prince of Wales' Health—Extensive Repairs on an Old Mansion—A Great Imperial Gathering.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Edmund Yates' London cable says: "The reports about the Prince of Wales' health are widely exaggerated. To say he is in rude health would not be accurate, but he is for all practical purposes perfectly strong and able to do nearly as much as he used to do ten years ago. His leg is much better and he can walk and ride a little. He is now much more careful as to his diet and smoking than formerly. There is really no reason for the alarming rumors which are flying about."

"The old mansion of the Duke of Leinster, in Carlton House terrace, bids fair next season to be the talk of the town, as the new owner, Mr. Sanford, who realized a vast fortune in Buenos Ayres, is spending fabulous sums and converting it into a renaissance palace. The principal staircase is to be constructed of pure statuary marble and the hall lined with slabs of the rarest colored marbles. One thousand pounds is the cost of more than one of the staterooms, and an order given to one eminent firm of upholsterers alone exceeds £20,000."

"The imperial party of Fredericksburg has now broken up and it is improbable that many will ever again be so unique a gathering there as an Emperor and Empress, three Kings, two Queens, four heirs apparent to thrones, and a host of princes and princesses. The royal party enjoyed the absolute privacy apart from the incessant surveillance of the Russian secret police, with whom Denmark has been literally garrisoned during the Emperor's visit."

REVISION OR NO REVISION.

Episcopalians Indulge in a Warm Debate Over the Prayer-Book Question.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—At the morning session of the Episcopal convention a resolution was passed requesting Congress to pass a stringent and uniform divorce law for the District of Columbia and the Territories. The committee on the prayer-book of the convention met this morning and evening prayers should be printed in the same type as the rest of the service.

The question of the revision of the prayer-book, which has been postponed, was called up and warmly discussed, the result being that the minority report was lost and the report of the majority will come up for consideration to-morrow. The convention then adjourned for the day.

Lutheran Pupils for Lutherans Only.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 16.—In the general council of the Lutheran evangelical church a hot discussion was indulged in over the Akron rule, adopted in 1875, providing that Lutheran pulpits were for Lutherans ministers only and Lutheran altars for Lutheran communicants only.

FAILED FOR $950,000.

LESSING, Solomon & Rosenthal, Dry Goods Men, Go Under at Waco, Texas.

WACO, Texas, Oct. 16.—The firm of Lessing, Solomon & Rosenthal, wholesale dry-goods and cotton factors, are temporarily embarrassed, and have made a sale of their stock of goods and store to H. B. Claffin & Co. of New York, their principal creditors. Their other assets have been placed in the hands of a trustee, who is endeavoring to collect and pay other creditors of the firm. The liabilities are placed at about $500,000, with the assets estimated at $200,000. It is believed in business circles here that the firm can pay all their liabilities in full if given time to realize on their assets. None of the banks or other business firms of this city are affected by the failure, if such it may be called. The firm has lost in business over fifty years and had an interest in several other business enterprises in this city and State. All of these are protected.
